

Pass in Review

Serving Marine Barracks, Washington, D.C.

January 1993

Special 1992
Year in Review Edition

Editorial note...

While the Corps' finest were showing the Marine Corps to the American public, the staff of 'Pass in Review' was hard at work bringing you news and photos from around the Barracks and the Marine Corps. The extra effort paid off with the selection of 'Pass in Review' as the best news magazine in the Marine Corps — up from its second place finish last year. The magazine will now go on to compete at the Department of Defense level.

Though victory leaves a heartwarming feeling, the main objective of this magazine is to serve the Marines of the Barracks as a medium for information that is as timely and relevant as possible. We encourage you, our readers, to submit any suggestions you may have to help us better serve you.

We thank you for your readership as we move into 1993 with our sights set on excellence.

Respectfully,
The Editor

Pass in Review

Volume 12

Number 1

Commanding Officer Col. John B. Sollis
Public Affairs Officer CWO-2 Virginia Bueno
Press Chief/Editor Sgt. Thomas J. LaPointe
Assistant Editor Cpl. Joey D. Benford
Assistant Editor Cpl. Scott T. Balliet
Photographic Support HQMC Photo Lab

Pass in Review is an authorized publication for members of the armed forces. It is published monthly 11 times a year by the Marine Barracks Public Affairs Office, Washington, D.C. 20390, and contains information released by Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps, American Forces Information Service, Navy News Service and public affairs offices around the Marine Corps. Contents are not the official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Government, Department of Defense, Department of the Navy, or the United States Marine Corps. All photos are official U.S. Marine Corps photos unless otherwise stated.

On the Cover: Barracks Marines march on for one of the 38 parades conducted during 1992. The year in review begins on page 14. (Photo by Sgt. Thomas J. LaPointe)

Back Cover: The first snowfall of 1993 blankets the Barracks. (Photo by Cpl. Joey D. Benford)

Inside Back Cover: Company A Marines stand at the ready during civil disturbance training conducted during 1992. (Photo by Sgt. Thomas J. LaPointe)

INSIDE

Local News

Briefs	4
David Robinson visits Barracks	5

Corpswide News

Briefs	6
Sexual Harrassment Hotline	6
Blood ban lifted on Gulf Vets	6
U.S. strikes Iraqi targets	7
CMC issues White Letter 22-92	9
A letter to the Commandant	8
Operation Restore Hope	10

Features

A look back at 1992	14
---------------------------	----

Departments

On Centerwalk	23
Salutes	24
MWR	25
Chaplain's Column	26

From the Commanding Officer...

Col. John B. Sollis, Barracks Commanding Officer, shown here as a (1stLt.) Barracks Platoon Commander in 1974.

“It’s Like Deja Vu All Over Again”

Most of us are familiar with the old adage, “you can never go home again.” The meaning, I suppose, is that things are never quite as special or spectacular the second time around as our “selective memory” and inflated recollections would have us believing they were “way back when.” Marines, as a subspecies, are especially susceptible to wallowing in nostalgia. We love to swap lies about how big and bad we were “back in the Old Corps.” And maybe we were. But most sea stories — ceremonial sea stories in particular — should be taken with a huge grain of salt.

Having said that, I can tell you, on the basis of just one month’s time, it’s great to be home again. To be back at the Barracks is, for me, like “deja vu all over again.” I love this place. Once upon a time I might have kept that confession to myself. But I’ve grown up. All these years later, I’m not the least bit reluctant to admit that publicly. This is a special place. You and I are very lucky to be here.

8th & I was home for me from February 1974 to February 1978. I arrived here from Okinawa with every intention of fulfilling the balance of my obligated service and then “punching off the net.” As proud and professionally motivated as I was to be a Marine lieutenant, as much as I was enjoying my time in the Corps, the thought of making a career of the Marine Corps had never seriously crossed my mind — not for one moment. Had someone suggested to me back then that I would one day be sitting in the big paneled office at the lonely end of the arcade, I would have passed his name to the Drug Exemption NCO.

So, what changed my thinking about sticking around the Marine Corps a while longer? The answer is very simple: it was the people with whom I served here during my four years at the Barracks. If it hadn’t been for them, I wouldn’t be here today. In the 19 years since I first walked past the sentry at Post 1 (a bit uncertainly, at that) a lot has happened in my life and in my career. I’ve changed. The Marine Corps has changed. The Barracks has changed. Even SSgt. Nicolina has changed!

But one thing that hasn’t changed, and I suspect never will, is the caliber of men and women serving here at the Oldest Post. In that regard, “we still make ‘em exactly like we used to,” proud, proficient, professional — a little taller than the Marine Corps average — and aggressively “squared away to the max.” And let me clue you in on a little secret — something I’ve discovered repeatedly since I left this place. People who excel here at 8th & I — those who really are as impressive as they appear — excel wherever they go in life for one simple reason: because they really care. The spirit of excellence is contagious. That’s what makes this place special; that’s what I love about 8th & I.

So, what’s it like for a former platoon commander to find himself unexpectedly reincarnated as the C.O. of 8th & I? So far, it’s totally awesome.* I’m proud and motivated to be here. Errr!

Semper Fidelis,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "John B. Sollis". The signature is written in a cursive, slightly slanted style.

John B. Sollis
United States Marine Corps
Commanding

*Thank you, Chaplain Deaton.

After hours medical treatment available

Active duty military members, dependents, and retirees seeking medical treatment after normal working hours and on weekends, should go to one of the following medical facilities:

* National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda — information (301) 295-4611, emergency room (301) 295-4810.

* Malcolm Grow Medical Center, Andrews Air Force Base — information (301) 981-5911, emergency room (301) 981-2158.

* Walter Reed Army Medical Center — information (202) 576-3501, emergency room (202) 576-1199.

For additional information on health benefits, the point of contact at the Washington Navy Yard Branch Medical Clinic is HM1 Freer, (202) 433-2640.

U.S. Marine Band continues concert series

“The President’s Own” United States Marine Band continues its 1993 Chamber Music Series, Sundays at 3 p.m., through February 21. Concerts are in the John Philip Sousa Band Hall. The series features members of the Marine Band performing a variety of chamber music such as solos, sonatas, trios and works for mixed ensembles.

All concerts in the Marine Band Chamber Music Series are free. No tickets are required. Street parking is available on Sundays, or ride Metro-Rail to Eastern Market Station. For more information, call the Marine Band Concert Information Line at (202) 433-4011.

Fort Belvoir schedules ski trip

The Fort Belvoir Outdoor Recreation Division will sponsor a cross country ski trip at the end of winter. The trip is scheduled for Feb. 6. The cost is $30, which covers round-trip transportation, area use fee, equipment, instruction and lunch. The price is $15 for children 5 to 9 years with an adult. The trip will depart the Outdoor Recreation Center at 6 a.m. and return at 6 p.m.

For more information, call the Fort Belvoir Outdoor Recreation Division at (703) 805-3781.

Scuba Courses Available

Students are now enrolling in the Pentagon Diving Academy indoor open water scuba courses. Master instructor Donald (Andy) Anderson will teach the next course approved for college credit and give students the knowledge and licensing to safely enter the underwater world.

Graduates are eligible for the master scuba diver program, which is the world’s highest non-instructional scuba rating. Divemaster and assistant instructor courses begin weekly. The academy has a program under which all students receive a discount on scuba equipment.

For more information about the academy or to enroll call (301) 856-7889.

Instructors needed for Young Marines Program

There is a severe need for Marines to be Young Marine instructors. All enlisted Marines are eligible to become role models for the youth of Washington, D.C. For more information, contact Capt. Thomas, at (202) 433-2258/2259.

Sexual harassment advice/counseling line established

(NNS) — A toll-free sexual harassment advice and counseling telephone line has been established for all Navy and Marine Corps civilian and military personnel.

The purpose of the line is to provide all Department of the Navy personnel confidential assistance in obtaining advice and counseling relating to sexual harassment. The line is intended for use by all parties — those who have been recipients of sexual harassment, those accused of sexual harassment and those who may have observed potential sexual harassment situations.

The line is intended to be a source of advice and support that is both physically and emotionally removed from the local scene. People manning the line will ensure that callers are made aware of the Navy Department’s sexual harassment policy and that callers receive specific information on: their rights and responsibilities; what options exist with respect to on-site counseling; how to resolve concerns at the lowest level; and how to formally submit a complaint via the chain of command, when necessary.

This line is not an investigative or reporting mechanism, nor is it intended to circumvent or take the place of the chain of command. Use of the line is not a substitute for utilizing the equal employment opportunity complaint process and supervisors may not use it to satisfy obligations to report sexual harassment.

The number for the line within CONUS is 1-800-253-0931. People overseas can call collect, commercial (703) 614-2735. The line will be manned from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on all government working days.

During non-working hours, holidays and weekends, an answering machine will be in place to receive calls.

NBA's David Robinson helps out

Basketball All-Star helps develop anti-drug strategies

(NNS) — National Basketball Association (NBA) superstar David Robinson traded olympic gold for the gold stripes of a Naval Reserve lieutenant as he joined the Navy/Marine Corps anti-drug effort in Washington, D.C., recently.

The three-time NBA all-star hung up the black and silver of the San Antonio Spurs for a uniform of navy blue during two weeks of annual active duty training, in which he helped to develop effective strategies to keep kids off drugs. His training included addressing Young Marines here.

The 7-foot, 4-inch Robinson, who also starred in two television spots on behalf of the Navy/Marine Corps team, attributes his success to having stood tall against the lure of drugs. The television spots signify the Navy and Marine Corps' inaugural media effort in the war on drugs.

The spots are scheduled to air nationwide this month.

During his stay in Washington, D.C., David Robinson addressed area Young Marines. Robinson is pictured here with Capt. Michael Thomas, Young Marine Commanding Officer, and Barracks Marines who volunteer as Young Marine instructors.

Robinson also shared a personal anti-drug message with youth groups in both Washington D.C., and Newark, N.J. During numerous informal presentations, he related his positive Navy experience and a long string of personal successes, most recently as a member of America's gold medal-winning "Dream Team" in Barcelona.

Going for the pin

Dan Mellow, All-Marine Wrestling coach, demonstrates basic wrestling fundamentals to LCpl. Christopher C. Camren, Guard Detachment, during a recent screening visit to find prospects for the All Marine Wrestling Team (Photo by Cpl. Scott T. Balliet)

Mustang Association to hold reunion

The Marine Corps Mustang Association (MCMA) plans to hold their sixth annual meeting and reunion. To qualify for "Mustang" designation, a Marine must have begun service in the Corps as an enlisted private and subsequently earned promotion to warrant or commissioned officer. Although many members are retired Marines, membership is open to all Marine Mustangs (active duty, reserve & veterans).

Membership information and application forms are available from National Headquarters, Marine Corps Mustang Association, Inc., P.O. Box 1314, Delran, NJ 08075-0142, or by telephoning Executive Director, Bob Richter, at (800) 321-USMC.

CHAMPUS announces new rates for 1993

The computation of the CHAMPUS annual deductible for outpatient care began for the new fiscal year on Oct. 1. For services received from Oct. 1, 1992 through Sept. 30, 1993, all CHAMPUS-eligible persons, except the family members of active-duty corporals and below, will pay the first $150 (for one person) or the first $300 (for a family) of allowable charges for outpatient medical care.

The families of active-duty corporals and below (and CHAMPUS FAMILIES) will pay an annual outpatient deductible of $50 for one person, or $100 for the whole family. CHAMPUS will pay the daily rate of $9.30 times the number of days spent in the hospital for inpatient care at civilian hospitals, or a flat fee of $25, whichever is greater.

This rate does not apply to any other category of CHAMPUS-eligible patients. Their inpatient care will in most cases be cost-shared under CHAMPUS's Diagnosis-Related Group Payment System.

Iwo Jima memorial service scheduled

A memorial service and banquet commemorating the 48th anniversary of the bloodiest battle in Marine Corps history, Iwo Jima, will be held at the South Mesa Staff NCO Club, Camp Pendleton, California on Saturday, February 20th, 1993. The men, wives and friends of the Third, Fourth and Fifth Marine Divisions, as well as those members of all other services, and the general public are cordially invited. For more information, write Jack Claven, 403 Primrose Place, Glendora, CA 91740, or call (818) 335-2483.

Missouri to deduct state tax

Active-duty and reserve members of the Armed Forces who are legal residents of Missouri had state taxes withheld from their basic pay beginning Jan. 1, 1993. Questions about withholding rates and reporting requirements should be addressed to Missouri Department of Revenue, Jefferson City, MO. 65101, or call (314) 751-3505.

Music Star to help Veterans Administration

Country music artist Travis Tritt will serve as national chairman of the Department of Veterans Affairs National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans.

The annual National Salute program is held at the VA's 171 hospitals and state veterans homes across the country during the week of Valentine's Day, Feb. 14. Chairman Tritt will visit veterans hospitalized in VA medical facilities that week and other times during the year. He'll voice VA's invitation to all citizens to visit veterans in local facilities, hospitals and nursing homes and consider joining the more than 80,000 men, women and children who volunteer in VA hospitals throughout the year.

Blood ban lifted for Gulf War Vets

MCNEWS — The Department of Defense announced Dec. 30 that the deferral of blood donations from military personnel who served in the Persian Gulf area has been lifted, with modifications. This deferral was ordered in November 1991, to preclude the risk of transmission of leishmaniasis, a parasitic infection caused by the bite of a sandfly.

Dr. Enrique Mendez Jr., Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs, lifted the ban on donations effective Jan. 1. The 14-month deferral period hasn't resulted in scientific evidence that the viscerotropic form of leishmaniasis is a serious threat to the blood supply. During that period, only 28 cases of leishmaniasis were confirmed in members of the U.S. Armed forces participating in Operation Desert Shield/Storm. Eleven were found to have the internal or viscerotropic, while the remaining 17 cases were the cutaneous or skin disorder variety.

No cases of transmission of the disease involving blood donations of military personnel have occurred.

The Department of Defense will continue its surveillance efforts for leishmaniasis when military personnel donate blood. Individuals who have been outside the United States in the last three years and deployed to the Persian Gulf during Desert Shield/Storm, and are presently under a doctor's care, or if they've experienced any leishmaniasis symptoms for a month or more after returning from the Persian Gulf, will be indefinitely deferred for donation and referred for medical examination.

All prospective donors will be asked if they have ever had leishmaniasis. Diagnosed cases of visceral leishmaniasis will be permanently deferred from donating blood. This policy will be subsequently reviewed for effectiveness following a six-month implementation period.

Coalition forces bomb Iraq

Stand-off ends with attack on air defense sites

NNS — Coalition aircraft attacked surface-to-air missile sites and associated infrastructure in Iraq at 1:15 P.M. (EST) Jan. 13, in response to continued Iraq violations of U.N. security council resolutions.

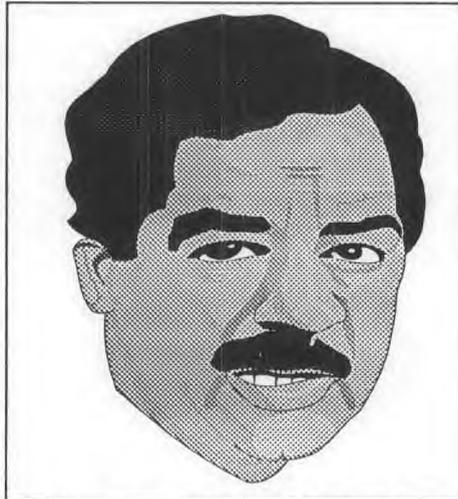

More than 100 coalition aircraft, 35 from aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk (CV 63), were launched. Preliminary reports indicated all aircraft returned safely. According to White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater, the mission's objective was to restore an environment in which there is no threat to coalition aircraft enforcing U.N. resolutions.

President Bush made the decision to go ahead with the attack on Jan. 11, but the attack was scrubbed on the 12th because of inclement weather, Fitzwater explained.

Fitzwater said coalition countries will continue to keep an eye on Iraq, and if it continues to violate U.N. sanctions, it will receive no warning before another raid is carried out. "The government of Iraq should understand that continued defiance of the U.N. security council resolutions and related coalition demarches will not be tolerated," said Fitzwater.

To back that up, Fitzwater said President Bush has ordered a battalion size force of U.S. personnel to Kuwait.

Asked if the recent violations of U.N. resolutions might be an attempt by Iraq President Saddam Hussein to test the resolve of America during the Presidential transition, Fitzwater said, "Both President Bush and President-elect Clinton have been quite specific in their support for the U.N. President-elect Clinton has been very specific in terms of making sure there could be no miscalculation. I think (Hussein's) making a big mistake if that's what he's trying to do."

Saddam Hussein defies U.N. resolutions imposed following the Gulf War.

Although Bush's National Security Staff has been in contact with Clinton's National Security Staff as this crisis developed, Bush personally called Clinton at 12:00 P.M. (EST) to tell him the operation "was a go."

Navy presence in the area in addition to Kitty Hawk includes command ship USS Lasalle (AGF 3), four guided missile carriers, two destroyers, two guided missile frigates and three auxiliary ships. There are 18,500 U.S. troops in the area, including 12,447 Navy personnel.

The latest round of violations began in late December when Iraq Air Force jets began violating the U.N. sanctioned "No-Fly Zone" below Iraq's 32nd parallel. There were several confrontations in which coalition aircraft chased the intruders back to Iraqi air space, but on Dec. 27, after being fired on, a U.S. Air Force fighter shot down an Iraqi jet.

Iraq then began moving Soviet-made SA-2 and SA-3 surface-to-air missiles below the 32nd parallel in what Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall described as, "a potentially hostile deployment." The U.S., Britain, France and Russia issued an ultimatum to Baghdad, and gave Iraq until the evening of Jan. 8 to remove the missiles from positions that interfere with the coalition's ability to enforce the "No-Fly-Zone." Iraq backed down just before the deadline, then moved the missiles back into the restricted positions within two days.

Another violation of the cease-fire agreement occurred when Iraq ordered a halt to flights to Iraq for U.N. inspections teams.

Yet another chapter in the story of Iraqi resistance to U.N. sanctions unfolded on Jan. 13. For the fourth day in a row, unarmed Iraqis dressed in civilian clothes crossed the border into the U.N.-declared neutral zone between Iraq and Kuwait. Acting without permission from the U.N. as required by the cease-fire agreement, they retrieved equipment, including military hardware, from UMM QASR Navy Base, which Iraq built before the 1991 Gulf War.

Like this uniform?

See Capt. Phelps in the Barracks Operations Office to get one like it, or call 433-4492.

A letter to the Commandant...

Former Marine passes on advice to today's Corps

Editor's note: The following is a letter written by James Hugh Powers to Gen. Carl E. Mundy Jr. The Commandant asked that it be shared with Marines, sailors and civilians of our Corps.

Dear General Mundy,

Last evening, I turned my television set on to a news broadcast in time to pick up a "special" on the testimony of yourself and other members of Joint Chiefs before a congressional committee in relation to the Tailhook Affair and problems of women in our armed forces.

I was impressed by the thoughtfulness, sincerity and depth of concern which characterized the presentations offered by you and your colleagues. And, in general, I share the views you all express.

As the testimony moves forward, my thoughts wandered back in time to the early weeks of June 1943, and to the Old Horse Soldier, my granduncle, Sgt. Andrew Casey, USA (ret.). He was a wonderful granduncle for myself and my two younger brothers to have had as small boys. He was living history, a reminder that we are the sum of history, and that most valued of all our treasures, a keeper of the tradition. He was an extraordinary old man.

He had joined the Army as an early teen-ager in the mid-1870s and had been assigned to the 7th Cavalry out in the Dakota Territory under the command of Gen. George Armstrong Custer. He was fortunate to have been in one of the cavalry units left "back in the fort" when Custer left on his ill-fated march to the Little Big Horn. Uncle Andy was a storehouse of information about the Indians, the Indian wars and the wild west in its glory.

"A good outfit doesn't have to say that it's good. It just is, and everybody knows it! Just see to it that you measure up!"

He had served in the Spanish-American War, retiring a little after the turn of the century. He was timeless. He was adventure. And he was ours!

The Old Horse Soldier was tough as nails, yet a good humored elder and gentle, if firm, disciplinarian when his grandnephews got a bit out of line. Even in his 80's he was lean, proud and dignified in bearing, standing ramrod straight. Even though partially blind, he kept busy with carpentry at his work bench in the basement of our home and about our premises in Needham, surrendering nothing to the infirmities of age.

On that day in June of 1943, I arrived home from Parris Island after graduating from platoon 266, 12th Recruit Battalion, on furlough transfer to New River. I received a joyous welcome from my parents and brothers. And, hearing Uncle Andy at work in the basement, I laid below to confront him in all my Marine Corps glory - greens, sharpshooter medal and all. Having survived P.I., I was a very cocky 20-year-old.

I found the Old Horse Soldier at his bench, his ample white hair reflecting the light from the lamp above. When he heard me, he turned around in his chair to survey this "boot." A slight smile crossed his stern, lined, ancient face. I awaited his verdict. As nearly as I can recall, this is what followed:

"Hmph!" he snorted. "Well, the Marines have done a good job with you."

"Yes sir!" I answered.

"A fine, fighting outfit!" he observed. "Your chances of coming through are better in such an outfit. A good outfit doesn't have to say that it's good. It just is, and everybody knows it! Just see to it that you measure up!"

Spoken like a true veteran of a good outfit, the 7th Cavalry. In 1943, its horses were gone and it was mechanized. Its heritage remained.

As the Old Horse Soldier chatted, I realized that I was talking to a man who had been alive when the only states west of the Mississippi were Texas, California, Nevada and Oregon. The rest of the map of the West, divided into territories, was simply inscribed "Indian Country."

The Old Horse Soldier now looked me squarely in the eye and said something I was never to forget, something as timely for officers and enlisted personnel of our armed forces today as in 1943.

"Young fellow, I have a little advice for you, something I want you to keep at the top of your agenda." "You are now wearing the uniform of the United States."

"You shall, at all times, remember that while you are wearing that uniform you represent the government and the people of the United States as well as the branch of service in which you are enrolled. Whatever you do will reflect for better or for worse on our family, on your branch of service, and the people of the United States. They have trusted you with upholding the honor."

Commandant issues White Letter 22-92 Responsibilities of Fitness Report Reviewing Officers

I am increasingly convinced that the Reviewing Officer for a fitness report has a critical role in ensuring the integrity of our Personal Evaluation System. The Reviewing Officer provides detached and seasoned insight and can clarify inconsistencies and correct inaccuracies that are often found in fitness reports. Moreover, a Reviewing Officer's comments become especially important in one-on-one fitness reports because he or she can broaden the base for the evaluation and provide peer comparisons from a larger population. Comments from a Reviewing Officer carry special weight when a Marine is recommended for a commission, a special program, augmentation, or accelerated promotion. In the case of an adverse fitness report, thoughtful and analytical reviews become mandatory, especially when a disparity exists between the evaluation and the Marine's rebuttal.

Merely checking a block under Reviewing Officer's Certification adds very little to the value of a report, whether the report is laudatory or adverse: Reviewing Officers who write meaningful reviews are fulfilling their leadership responsibilities, ensuring that reports are submitted in a timely manner as well as providing illuminating comments which characterize the Marine's performance as compared to that of others within the command and within the entire career experience of the Reviewing Officer. I realize that there are many instances where the Reviewing Officer will simply not know enough about the Marine being reported on to make useful comments. On such occasions, Reviewing Officers should solicit information from a framework against which to judge the Reporting

General C.E. Mundy Jr.

Senior's evaluation.

Given the importance of the Reviewing Officer's comments, I am concerned that less than 25 percent of all fitness reports contain any substantive Reviewing Officers comments. The more senior the Reviewing Officer, the more likely it is that a meaningful review will be made. This, of course, demonstrates that it is incumbent upon our senior officers to encourage—and direct—that our younger officers, more junior in the chain of command, make descriptive and comparative comments as Reviewing Officers.

Our Personnel Evaluation System is a good system which is built upon integrity and genuine concern for our Marines' welfare and the good of our Corps. But it can be made better if Reviewing Officers will shoulder the leadership responsibility we have given them by actively participating within the system. I strongly encourage each of you to "get the word out" — Reviewing Officers make a difference and have a critical role to play, and it is a fundamental leadership responsibility. I expect every one of our officers who review fitness reports to be full participants in the evaluation process and not just as passive observers.

Operation Restore Hope underway

U.S. forces deploy to aid millions of starving in Somalia

AFIS — U.S. service members in Somalia find a country devastated by a long drought and a breakdown in government.

Somalia is on the Horn of Africa and during the Cold War was a strategic spot. In the north is the Gulf of Aden--which leads to the Red Sea and Suez Canal. To the east is the Indian Ocean. In the west is Ethiopia --a country Somalia has had many border disputes with. To the south lies Kenya -- a base for much of the relief effort.

Somalia shifted sides during the Cold War, being tied to the West from independence in 1960 through 1969, then turning to Moscow until 1977. In 1981, the United States agreed to supply substantial military and economic assistance in return for use of ports and airports.

No census has been taken in Somalia, but U.N. officials guess the population is around 4.9 million in an area about the size of California. U. N. officials estimate up to 2.2 million people are in danger of starvation. The area hit hardest is in the south.

The population is rural with concentrations in the capital city of Mogadishu and the ports of Merca, Hurdio and Berbera. Almost 99 percent of the population is ethnic Somalis and Sunni Muslims.

The northern portion of the country is mountainous with plateaus reaching 3,000 to 7,000 feet. The climate is tropical with year-round temperatures between 85 and 105 degrees Fahrenheit. In good years, there are two rainy seasons--from March to May and September to December. The weather is somewhat cooler in the mountains. The current drought began in 1986.

Somalia was ruled by dictator Gen. Mohamed Siad Barre from 1969 through 1990. Upon his ouster, local warlords filled the gap. To a country already suffering under drought, this was the final blow. The army broke down, and warlords were able to arm gangs. Relief shipments were stolen to feed local gangs and the more powerful warlords used the shipments to increase their standing. Food, in other words, became a weapon.

Many warlords and gangs are based around families. Clan groupings are the important aspect of Somali life, and their importance will render putting a government in place impossible, some observers say.

The British and Italians split the country before World War I. During World War II, the British occupied Italian Somalia. Both British and Italian Somalia united when the country gained independence in 1960.

Somalia is a desperate country. Even before the drought and civil war, the country's infant mortality rate was 145 per 1,000. The average life expectancy was 47 years, and the country had a 40 percent literacy rate.

LEFT: Marines arrive in the airport in Mogadishu, Somalia for Operation Provide Hope, which began in December.

ABOVE: Marines unload food for starving Somalis. (DoD Combat Camera photos)

First Marine killed in Somalia

3/11 Marines ambushed on patrol

NNS — After five weeks of ground operations in Somalia, a U.S. Marine was killed and a Navy corpsman was injured Jan. 12 during separate incidents near the Mogadishu Airport.

A seven-man Marine Corps security patrol from 3rd Battalion, 11th Marine Regiment, was fired upon by Somali gunmen at approximately 10 p.m. (Mogadishu time). The patrol returned fire and a Marine was killed in the ensuing engagement. The patrol withdrew to the airport and the Marine was taken to the U.S. Army field hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Somali casualties as a result the engagement were unknown.

Although no other U.S. personnel were injured in the exchange, a Navy corpsman accompanying Marines from Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment, was wounded in the left shoulder when their patrol came under fire. The corpsman was taken to the 86th Evacuation

Hospital at the airport for treatment.

These incidents underscore the shift to Phase III of Operation Restore Hope. The first two phases were designed to secure Mogadishu and the surrounding areas and to get food flowing as quickly as possible, according to Pentagon spokesman, Bob Hall. The goal of Phase III is to stabilize the country so the peacekeeping operation can be turned over to the United Nations. Hall said that includes more aggressive patrolling and more decisive reactions to incidents in which U.S. personnel are threatened.

Hall says resistance is expected. "There are people out there who want to go on the way they've been going on for the last couple of years, essentially being their own law and order," said Hall

See "Marine Dies," page 12

Marines raid rebel arms cache

MEU Commander says site 'posed a threat' to Marines

In an early morning move, flawlessly executed and virtually unopposed, a small force from the SPMAGTF (CENTSOC) at Baidoa airfield, Somalia, confiscated three anti-aircraft guns and an armored personnel carrier located inside a civilian compound situated directly across from the airfield entrance.

In addition to the confiscated armament, 19 Somalis, who were holed up inside the compound, peacefully surrendered to the Marines and were released shortly thereafter.

According to Col. G.S. Newbold, 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit Commanding Officer, the guns and the APC posed a substantial threat to his Marines and the U.N. Humanitarian relief efforts in Baidoa.

Local leaders said that the APC was feared throughout the city because it was used for "crowd control" and reportedly had killed 10 Somalis.

The presence of the arms also violated an agreement by local clan leaders that all weapons be moved outside the city limits, said Newbold.

After Marine intelligence reported seeing the munitions and what appeared to be work being performed on the APC, Newbold issued several stern warnings to gang leaders, "Get rid of the weapons or hand them over to the Marines."

When Newbold's warnings were ignored, the 15th MEU Commander decided to send a strong message to local thugs with a powerful show of force.

See "Arms Raid," page 12

Arms Raid,

continued from page 11

As planned, at precisely 6:08 a.m. Dec. 24, squads of reconnaissance and infantry Marines and four light armored vehicles from Battalion Landing Team 2/9, surrounded the compound. Meanwhile AH-1W Cobra attack helicopters from Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 164 circled above to provide air support, if needed.

Using a loudspeaker, a Somali interpreter attached to the Marines called out to the Somalis to surrender, which they did with no resistance. With the Somalis safely out of the compound, the Marines moved in to remove the weapons. The APC, which was fully operational, was driven out by GySgt. Keith Neiswonger of Oceanside, Calif. All weapons were confiscated and taken for storage at the airfield.

Newbold said he was pleased with the success of the mission and was thankful that no one was hurt. "I wanted this mission executed in as safe an environment as possible without having one drop of blood spilled. This mission was well run and helped ensure that the rules agreed upon by the people of Baidoa are complied with."

Story by CWO-2 Virginia Bueno, Joint Task Force Public Affairs

Somalia facts:

Area:	246,201 square miles
Capital:	Mogadishu
Climate:	Very hot and dry
Language:	Arabic, Somali, English
Religion:	Sunni Muslim
Per Capita Income	$216

Marine Dies,

continued from page 11

In recent days U.S. Forces in Somalia have seized a number of weapons. Marine Col. Mike Hague, a spokesman for Joint Task Force Somalia, said the quality of the weapons seized ranged non-functional to quite new.

As of Jan. 10 there were 22,500 U.S. personnel either on the ground or aboard ships off the coast of Somalia. An additional 10,927 personnel from 20 coalition countries are supporting the relief effort.

Beware of recent job scams

Experts says 'Separating service members targeted'

Unscrupulous companies are targeting separating service members, promising help in getting a job in exchange for a chunk of money.

At least four Air Force members separating under the Voluntary Separation Incentive or Special Separation Benefit programs reported being victims of the scam. Three were stationed at Dover Air Force Base, Del., and one at Barksdale Air Force Base, La.

The problem is not limited to those two states, however. Brenda Jimenez, spokesperson for the Better Bureau of Metropolitan Washington, D.C., said she's seen reports of similar scams in the nation's capital as well as in Florida and other states. She said the FBI is investigating one job scam company.

The airmen responded to an ad placed by a California-based company. The company operated under the same initials as a major airline, although it had nothing to do with the airline. Jimenez said similar organizations have used the names of brokerage firms and government agencies to confuse the public.

The company's advertisements promised its "job search professionals" would help clients obtain high-paying jobs overseas. One Air Force sergeant told Airman Magazine he had even taken the contract to the base legal office for review. The legal officer said the contract was valid.

The company charged about $800 for the service. The fee allegedly was used for expenses.

The sergeant called the Better Business Bureau. At the time, the bureau had no complaints against the company. He called the company, which sent a courier to his office to pick up the money and signed the contract.

Someone from the company called later to say the sergeant had a job interview in Texas. In the meantime the sergeant told some friends about the company. Some thought it was a good offer, and they paid $800 and signed up. Shortly before the scheduled interview, the sergeant realized he hadn't heard from the company for a while. Worried, he tried to call for two days, receiving nothing but busy signals. Finally, he got a prerecorded message saying the number had been disconnected.

Bob Stein, head of DoD's Transition Support and Services Directorate in the Pentagon, said all transitioning service members need to be aware of this problem.

"Anytime someone wants money up front for services, you should investigate carefully," Stein said. "I'm not suggesting you reject the idea outright.

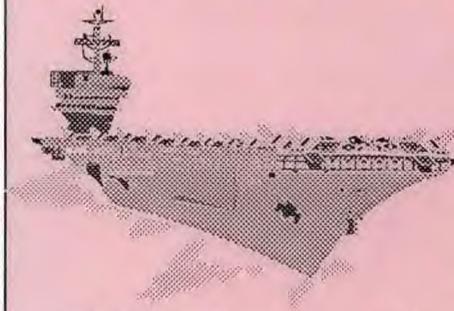

But in this day and age when anyone can buy a mailing list, you have to be careful."

Jimenez said reporting to the local Better Business Bureau can prevent others from being cheated. She suggests job hunters ask themselves if the company is really providing information they couldn't get for free, such as through newspaper ads.

"Also, make sure explanations of services to be performed, client obligations and guarantee and refund provisions are in writing," she said. "Finally, never sign a contract under pressure."

*Story By
Evelyn D.Harris, AFIS*

Marine Squadrons to integrate into Navy carrier air wings by 1995

(MCNEWS) — A recent decision by the acting Secretary of the Navy has set in motion an ongoing initiative to integrate assets of Marine Corps Tactical Aviation into U.S. Navy Carrier Air Wings. By FY-95, four Marine Corps Squadrons will be incorporated into carrier air wings.

The long-range plan, approved by acting Secretary of the Navy Sean O'Keefe Nov. 16, will enhance the air-to-ground capabilities of the carrier air wings, while saving the Navy an estimated $50 million per year from FY-94 to FY-99, according to the Department of Navy. As part of the integration, four Navy squadrons; two F-14 squadrons, one EA-6B squadron and one A-6E squadron, will be disestablished.

During the 12 month workup period and six-month deployment at sea, these squadrons will fall under tactical control of the carrier wing commander. When the ships are in port, squadrons will remain stationed at their home air station. The Marine Corps has reserved the option to rotate these squadrons over time. Navy and Marine Corps teams working together will enhance their abilities to provide close air support and gain air supremacy.

1992:

Looking Back

1992 was another busy year for Barracks Marines, as they supported hundreds of ceremonial obligations and still maintained technical proficiency in their occupations. (Official U.S. Marine Corps photos)

The Year in Review

A look back at the events that shaped the Barracks during 1992

Nineteen ninety-two has come and gone, and with it another year of world and national change. Highlighted by further breakup of the former Soviet Union and events in Somalia, the past year also marked the changing of Barracks Commanders and election of a new President.

The Marine Corps in 1992 was in the spotlight for performing tactical, humanitarian and peace-keeping roles around the world. The Corps deployed forces to Los Angeles to help authorities restore order during riots in May, assisted Americans in Florida in the aftermath of Hurricane Andrew and deployed to Somalia late in the year for Operation Restore Hope, a role which has continued into the new year. In addition, the Marine Corps provided emergency relief flights into Eastern Europe, continued reducing and streamlining forces to meet future staffing goals and conducted exercises with NATO and Middle East nations.

For the Barracks, it was another year of parades, ceremonies and other commitments. Color Sergeant of the Marine Corps Dean R. Keck, Company A, participated in his 600th ceremony. Sergeant Clay C. Draud, H&S Co., was the Barracks' meritorious sergeant and Noncommissioned Ceremonies...

1992: Looking Back

Officer of the Year. Lance Corporal Joe F. Cofer Jr., Co. A, was the Barracks' Marine of the Year.

Though many of the Corps' highlights didn't have a direct impact on the Barracks, two Barracks Marines deployed during December in support of Operation Restore Hope, and each company provided a piece of the Barracks operational puzzle throughout 1992.

During Parade Season, Barracks Marines performed 18 Evening Parades, 14 Sunset Parades and six special parades, for a total of 38. There were more than 70,000 people who watched parades as invited guests or through reservations, with countless thousands of others who attended Sunset Parades or Evening Parades through general admission.

In addition to parades, Barracks Marines conducted hundreds of other ceremonies in Washington, D.C., and across the nation. Though precise figures were not yet tabulated at press time, approximately 850 additional ceremonial commitments were met, based on statistics from July 1991 to November 1992. These included funerals, arrivals, Battle Color Detachment performances, Color Guard appearances and others.

Company A Marines sharpened combat skills with land navigation, civil disturbance training packages and the Battalion Field Exercise. The Silent Drill Team participated in San Francisco's "Fleet Week," and the Color Guard participated in the Super Bowl and at Red Square. In addition, the company conducted a field mess night and won the Battalion Field Meet.

Company B underwent a change of command in February, in which Capt. Looney was relieved by Capt. Kirk D. Schlotzhauer. Increased education of the company's Marines, coupled with reorganized and streamlined operating procedures, helped the company improve its contingency mission readiness. Company B Marines also underwent swim qualifications, met Battle Skills requirements and participated in the FEX.

In the field...

1992: Looking Back

"The Marines of Co. B prepared for and executed a myriad of missions during the year. In all instances, whether in ceremonies or in the field, their performance was impressive," said Schlotzhauer.

"I am confident the high standards and superb performance will continue to be a hallmark of the company in 1993."

For the Marines of Drum and Bugle Corps, it was another year of concerts, parades and traveling. During the year, they performed for four Marine Corps Scholarship Balls, the 100th anniversary of the New York Stock Exchange, the Today Show and made its annual trip to the Texas State Fair. The year was also highlighted by a performance with Lee Greenwood at the Headquarters, Marine Corps Birthday Ball, and entertaining a quarter of a million spectators during the East and West Coast tours.

"Many of the Marines (in D&B) have been doing this for 10 to 15 years," said LtCol. Truman W. Crawford, D&B Director.

"It's testimony to the love they have for what they do."

In addition to its regular duties providing security for the Barracks and the White House Communications Agency, Marines of Guard Detachment provided local traveling support to the President, Secretary of Defense and United Nations General Assembly. Guard Marines celebrated the opening of their "Marine House" at Naval Station Anacostia to support Marines not on post and provide space for administrative offices.

"These Marines provided outstanding security operations at various high level functions. They are to be commended for their superb and professional efforts," said Capt. Michael Thomas, Detachment Commander.

"It is a pleasure to lead a detachment of such high quality Marines."

Behind all the ceremonial and

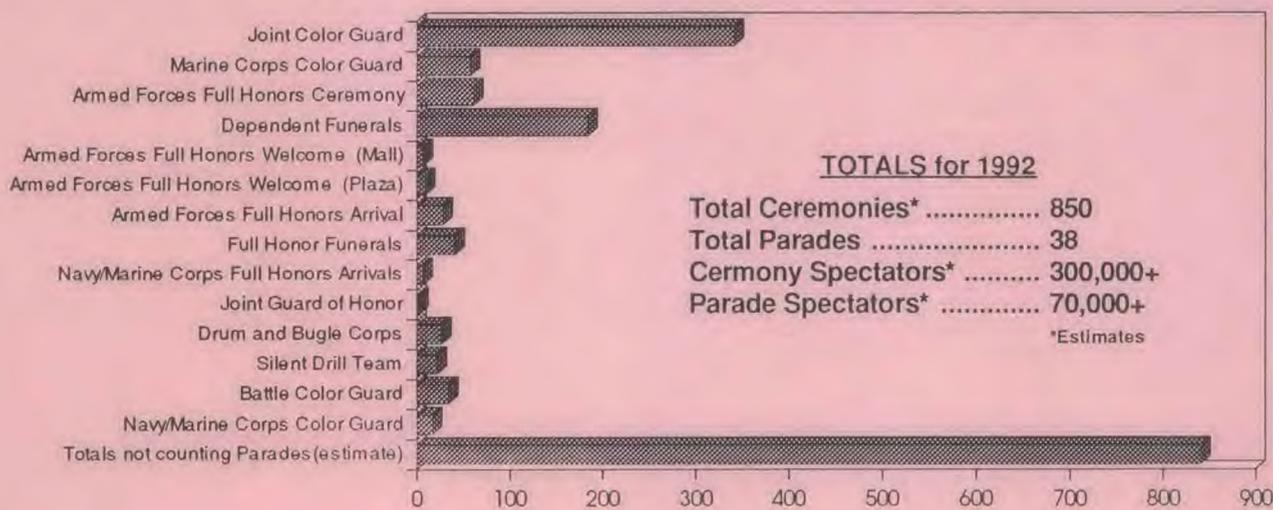

Barracks Marines sharpened combat skills at MCCDC Quantico, Va., Fort A.P. Hill, Va., and Naval Station Anacostia during 1992.

Overview...

1992: Looking Back

1992 Ceremonial Commitments

security obligations of the Barracks, the Marines of H&S Co. kept the inner machinery running smoothly. From meals to transportation, and grounds to refrigerator repair, the Marines behind the scenes continued their support of the Battalion. In July the company underwent a change of command in which Maj. David A. Bethel assumed command from Maj. Paul A. Brygider. In addition, 1992 saw the introduction of Pvt. Chesty X, support of the annual Battalion FEX at Fort A.P. Hill, Va., and a second consecutive year of capturing the Commander's Cup.

"We may not be pretty, but we get the job done," said Bethel.

"H&S Marines provide outstanding support to the Barracks, and one of the greatest things is that our Marines have their roots in the Fleet Marine Force and will eventually return."

The Marine Corps Institute developed the "next generation" of correspondence courses for Marines during 1992, including a graduate-level Command and Staff Nonresident Course and the four-book Marine Battle Skills Training Program. The Institute also worked toward shorter course development times and more cost-effective production techniques to increase efficiency.

"As our capabilities improve each year, we are constantly seeking new ways to achieve our goal of improving our service to our fellow Marines," said LtCol. J.S. Sfayer, MCI Deputy Director.

Security Company celebrated the 50-year anniversary of Camp David in 1992, which was highlighted by a 50-kilometer hike in the Appalachian Mountains. In addition Camp David Marines provided security for more than 40 Presidential visits during 1992, including visits by leaders of Russia, Britain, Mexico and Germany. Camp David Marines competed in a new squad competition, which is scheduled to be an annual event.

Major Craig A. Tucker, Commanding Officer, Security Company, describes his company as "superior Marines providing superior security to the President of the United States."

This year was introduced with a Barracks-wide tasking to support the Presidential Inauguration and Marines facing combat in two locations. If the first month is any indication of what 1993 has to offer, it seems to promise another event-filled year for the Barracks and the Marine Corps.

*Story by
Sgt. Thomas J. LaPointe*

Prepare for the change!

New administration may affect you and your Marine Corps

The presidential elections are over and, with the new administration, changes may soon be affecting current defense budgets, particularly in the Marine Corps. With these deeper cuts, many Marines will find it harder than ever to reenlist if they don't fully understand the constant changes that will be occurring in the near future.

With the drawbacks already in effect and the drawbacks that are likely to be coming, reenlisting may not be as easy as it used to be. If you are going to reenlist, start as early as you can. Do not wait until you have a couple of months left; you may cost yourself a career. If you need to take the ASVAB test over again to qualify for a lateral move or officer program, do not wait until the last minute; it can take up to 30 days to get the new scores into the system. Plan ahead - it works!

Missing fitness reports can also be a major obstacle to reenlisting. A missing fitness report can take up to 180 days, (sometimes faster), to be replaced and put into the system. A reenlistment request cannot be submitted with it. If you are missing a fitness report, see the Barracks Administration Office; they can help.

PFT's are only good for 6 months; you have to have a current one to be eligible for reenlistment.

If you are unsure whether to stay in or get out and have a good record, submit a package anyway; you just might get what you want. If not, you can get out; you've lost nothing. Be advised, however, that if you are a first term, you will have only 30 days to make your final decision; the Armed Forces are not taking prior service anymore.

It all boils down to this - PLAN YOUR FUTURE, in or out of the Corps. Make your plans for the future now. Where do you want to be 5, 10 or 15 years from now? What are you doing to make those goals? Are you serious about it? It's your career so - "JUST DO IT!"

SSgt. Steve Smith,
Barracks Career Planner

Welcome aboard to GySgt. Peter J. Reed, the new Barracks Career Planner.
(Photo By Cpl. Joey D. Benford)

On Centerwalk

Honoring excellence among Barracks Marines

Sgt. Clay C. Draud

Unit H&S Company
Hometown Ft. Thomas, Ky.
Entered Service April 6, 1988
Occupation 0351; Anti-Tank
Assaultman
Billet Grounds
Maintenance Chief
On Centerwalk for NCO of the Year

Sgt. Draud recently transferred to the Fleet Marine Force, and is looking forward to a career full of travel and excitement.

LCpl. Joe F. Cofer Jr.

Unit "A" Company
Hometown Stockton, Ala.
Entered Service November 16, 1990
Occupation 0351; Anti-Tank
Assaultman
Billet Fire-team Leader
Silent Drill Team
On Centerwalk for Marine of the Year

LCpl. Cofer enjoys weight-lifting and fishing. He has prior college and hopes to earn a degree in computer science while he is in the Marine Corps.

Information and photos compiled by Cpl. Joey D. Benford

Barracks Salutes

PROMOTIONS

Maj. D.E. Carroll
CWO-2 V. Bueno
GySgt. M.R. Christianson
GySgt. K.W. Hamm
GySgt. W.L. Howell
SSgt. J.M. Smith
Sgt. I. Dobson
Sgt. B.C. McClure
Sgt. M.S. Miller
Sgt. G.P. Yoder
Cpl. B.S. Bishop
Cpl. C.M. Ferguson
Cpl. B.J. Kane
Cpl. G.L. Wade
LCpl. P.F. Andrews
LCpl. S.W. Augusten
LCpl. F. Avitalozano
LCpl. R.E. Barrett
LCpl. B.K. Bradshaw
LCpl. C.M. Bross
LCpl. D.J. Carpenter
LCpl. N.R. Carrick
LCpl. D.S. Chandler
LCpl. T.R. Compton
LCpl. K.J. Dipzinski
LCpl. D.R. Fields
LCpl. M.J. Fuller
LCpl. D.M. Glover
LCpl. M.H. Gray
LCpl. C.M. Hartzell
LCpl. B.P. Holland
LCpl. J. Jaramillo III
LCpl. B.W. Jorgensen
LCpl. B.T. Kenney
LCpl. P.M. Kindred
LCpl. R.A. Lockhart
LCpl. R.E. Longs
LCpl. R.C. Mancini Jr.
LCpl. S.J. Mills Jr.
LCpl. S.L. Murphy
LCpl. B.J. Podgorski
LCpl. F.A. Politano Jr.
LCpl. M.S. Robinson
LCpl. R.A. Roxberg
LCpl. T.J. Samartino
LCpl. C.K. Schmer
LCpl. R.L. Schoofield
LCpl. J.R. Teas
LCpl. R.D. Terwilliger
LCpl. E.P. Tourelle
LCpl. K.J. Vermillion
LCpl. R.A. Watkins
LCpl. W.B. Williams Jr.
LCpl. J.M. Wittenmyer

PFC C.J. Guyton
PFC M.G. Lebeau
PFC J.J. Osborne
PFC K.L. Poore
PFC S.L. Rose III
PFC E.G. Ruley

WELCOME ABOARD

Col. J.B. Sollis
1stLt. S.B. LeWallen Jr.
GySgt. M.G. Avila
GySgt. P.J. Reed
GySgt. D.E. Rosche
SSgt. J.L. Abbracciamento
SSgt. B. Bowman
SSgt. S.A. Koutsky
Sgt. L.P. Benoit Jr.
Cpl. T.R. Devoe
Cpl. R.T. Eckert
Cpl. A.C. Miller
LCpl. P.F. Andrews
LCpl. B.K. Bradshaw
LCpl. J.L. Chastain Jr.
LCpl. T.W. Collett
LCpl. C.M. Hartzell
LCpl. J.M. Hilliard
LCpl. J.R. Hinkley
LCpl. G.W. Jerkins Jr.
LCpl. P.M. Kindred
LCpl. R.C. Mancini Jr.
LCpl. T.H. Marx
LCpl. S.J. Mills Jr.
LCpl. M.F. Murray

LCpl. F.A. Politano Jr.
LCpl. T.J. Samartino
LCpl. G.S. Stewart
LCpl. M.B. Stolarz
LCpl. E.P. Tourelle
LCpl. R.A. Watkins
PFC W.C. Barron
PFC R.L. Bedard
PFC N.C. Bonadies
PFC A.L. Botta
PFC T.W. Champ
PFC J.G. Cline
PFC S.T. Donald
PFC M.J. Dunn
PFC P.W. Gamble
PFC S. Gilmore
PFC S.L. Graham
PFC J.B. Grant
PFC C.J. Guyton
PFC A.H. Hahn
PFC H.M. Hairr
PFC K.D. Hannan
PFC A.T. Hill
PFC R.M. Hixon II
PFC C.E. Johnson
PFC G.W. Jones Jr.
PFC J.A. Kaiser
PFC P.A. Kennedy
PFC T.L. Kennedy
PFC C.C. Kimmerle
PFC E.V. King
PFC T.D. Kyle
PFC M.G. Lebeau
PFC S.D. Lee
PFC F.I. Lozada
PFC V. Maher III

Thank you...

To all Marines, sailors and civilians of the Barracks,

My wife, Shirley, and I would like to express our deepest gratitude for all the support we received during the loss of our daughter, Samantha. The support was overwhelming, and words alone cannot express our appreciation. The support we received made a very hard time a little easier. Thank you all very much.

Steve and Shirley Smith

Samantha M. Smith, April 28, 1986 - Dec. 7, 1992

MWR Activities line

"Your ticket to entertainment"

MWR still has tickets to the March 20 Bullets game against the Chicago Bulls. Tickets are $20 each and will be sold first come, first serve basis.

The Bullets lottery is in full swing. MWR has two season tickets to every Bullets home game at the Capital Centre. These tickets are for GREAT SEATS! Lower Level, center court, row T!! Each month MWR holds a lottery and sells the tickets to the winner of the lottery. For lottery forms contact MWR. The lottery is held on the Friday before the 15th of each month. For more information, contact MWR.

MWR is still selling ENTERTAINMENT DISCOUNT BOOKS. These books offer up to 50 percent off almost everything and are worth hundreds of dollars in potential savings. Books are good from now until December, 1993. The cost of each book is $35 and for each book you buy MWR will give you a free discount coupon for $7 to use on future MWR ticket purchases.

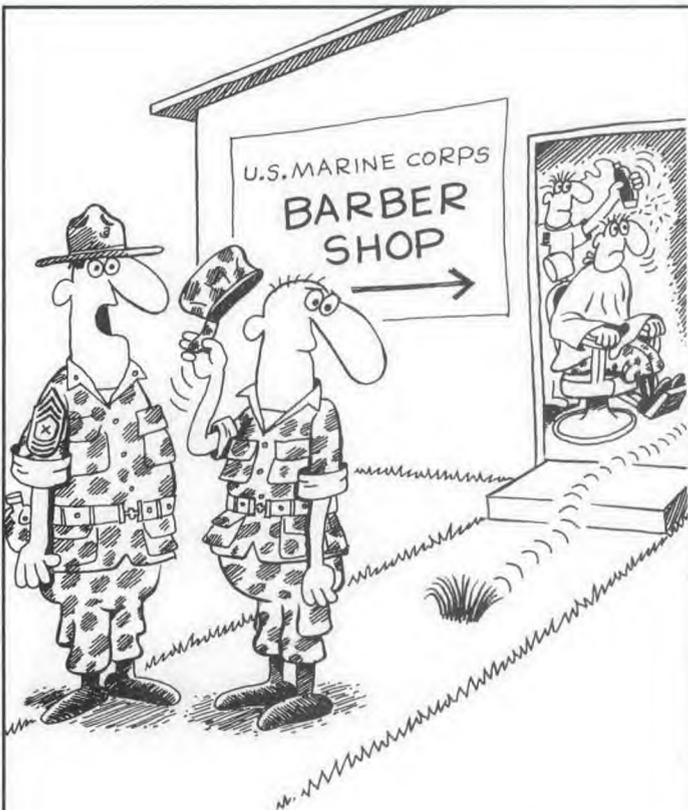

Stop by MWR to see sample ENTERTAINMENT books. Books will only be sold until the end of February.

Beginning in February ALL MOVIE TICKETS will be sold for $3.75 regardless of which theater you choose. MWR has tickets to the following theatres: AMC, General Cinema, Cineplex Odeon, RC, and Multiplex.

MWR is selling tickets to the 1993 Tour of World Figure Skating Champions at the Capital Centre. This event will be held April 23 at 8 p.m. Tickets are limited so buy now. Cost for tickets at MWR is $20 (but they are $40 seats at the door!).

Basketball intramural season is in full swing. Ten different teams are competing. Stop by the gym during lunch and cheer on your favorite team.

For more information on any of these events, please contact MWR at 433-2112.

"Apparently you and your hair had an extremely close relationship, Hinkle!"

"Good news! The lab test is back! You're not blind, you just have your helmet on backwards!"

Break through the blues

As I sit here to write this article it is 35 degrees and drizzling outside. This is not exactly the white powdery snow that was predicted three or four months ago for Washington, D.C. In fact, it is hard to remember when you could last see the sunshine. Something as simple as the weather and time of year can effect a persons' emotions and outlook. The months of January and February will report the highest occurence of depression related problems of the year. Why is that? Perhaps it is the weather, the shorter than hoped for football season for the Washington Redskins, the credit card bills coming in from that pre-Christmas buying spree, or whatever the situation may be.

So, how does one break through the blues of the post-holiday season? Please allow me to suggest setting some New Year goals. Why not begin that long delayed exercise program you have intended to start for your personal goals, whatever they are. Maybe you have recently reported to the area for duty and have not yet made the effort to seek out a church, parish, or synagogue of your choice. The spiritual heritage of your youth could certainly bring some light to a dreary time. When was the last time you sat down and wrote your mother, father, sister, brother, grandparent, or any loved one a well thought out letter? As much as we all like to get something at mail call, you can imagine how they might feel if you take the time to let them know you were thinking of them that day. The list of personal things could include cleaning out that long neglected closet, garage or tool room. Perhaps you could get an early start on doing your 1992 tax return this year. If you are a parent, maybe you could decide that 1993 will be the year that you spend time with your children reading them a story, helping with their homework, playing catch or other games, or just being mom or dad.

Some of these suggestions may seem simple but they will focus you ahead to the new year of wonderful opportunities. Discovering new friends, renewing relationships, improving your self-worth, achieving personal goals are all results of a forward looking attitude.

May this be a year of personal excellence, happiness and peace for you.

Lt. Paul R. Deaton, CHC, USN

Worship Opportunities

NAVY YARD	Catholic Mass	9 a.m. Sundays
	Protestant Service	10:30 a.m. Sundays
NAVAL ANNEX	Catholic Mass	7:30 a.m. Daily
FORT MYER	Catholic Mass	5 p.m. Saturdays
		9:30 a.m. Sundays
Old Post Chapel		12:30 p.m. Sundays
	Protestant Services	10:30 a.m. Sundays
		11:30 a.m. Sundays
	Protestant Services	8:15 a.m. Sundays
Memorial Chapel		11 a.m. Sundays
	Protestant Services	Call (703) 806-3393/4316
FORT BELVOIR	Jewish Services	(Chaplain Zisook)

MARINE  BARRACKS

ESTABLISHED 1898